SAFETY COURSE AT POOL

A Water Safety Demonstration was held at the Bassano Swimming Pool on Sunday afternoon. Sponsored by the Water Safety Service of the Canadian Red Cross Society and the Alberta Safety Council, the demonstration consisted of all phases of water safety in the pool, safe operations of boats, rescue work and artificial respiration.

Mr. Kenneth A. Hodgert, former Director for the Canadian Red Cross Society Water Safety Service, conducted the demonstration and acted as instructor and commentator. He was ably assisted by Mrs. Hodgert and Jack Cote, Pool manager. R.B. Stiles, Goldwin Smith and others simulated the part of victims of water accidents for the water safety demonstration and each put on a realistic show.

For those who had no previous knowledge of water safety requirements, the demonstrations were very instructive and were entertaining to the large crowd of spectators.

LOCAL BALL CLUB WINS TROPHY

The Bassano Pony League Baseball Club maintained its winning ways by winning the final game of the season in whipping Standard 10 to 6. The winning pitcher was Ronny Hellwig, who has supported the team all season by his superb control of the ball. The Bassano club did not lose a single game during the season's league play. A great deal of credit for the fine performance of the Bassano club is due to the stellar coaching of William Lee, who taught the boys to play "heads up" ball and thus enabled them to take advantage of errors committed by the opposing clubs in addition to playing good ball themselves.

The Dead Horse Lake Pony Baseball League was composed of six teams, Bassano, Gleichen, Cluny, Hussar, Rockyford and Standard and has held a very successful season this year.

By winning the final game on Tuesday, Bassano has won the Pony League trophy for 1956.

BIBLE SCHOOL OPENS MONDAY

A Vacation Bible School will open on Monday, July 30th at the Bassano Evangelical Free Church and will be held daily from Monday through Friday at 9:00 to 12:00 noon from July 30th through August 10th.

Experienced teachers will be on hand to teach. Visiting teachers include Mrs. Verner Strom, a missionary recently returned from Japan; Miss Ruth Lieske, former Bassano school teacher; Miss Philo Brandon and Miss Evelyn Hanson, students from the Prairie Bible Institute.

There will be Bible stories, singing, games and handicrafts for all ages. Boys and girls, ages 4 to 17 will be welcome.

HEAVY STORM LASHES DISTRICT

A wild thunder storm slashed across southern Alberta on Wednesday afternoon, accompanied by rain and high winds. Hail flattened crops from Calgary eastward to the northern Hussar district and the Gem district. The Bassano district experienced mostly high winds and lightning, only a light rain falling during the afternoon.

Crops in the Bassano area are well advanced and prospects look good for an average crop of wheat. Barley is short.

TOWN TOPICS

Mr. and Mrs. George Smith and Faye of Stetler have been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Knight for the past few days.

Mr. Smith was a resident of Bassano for a time in 1942.

Mrs. Hull and her three daughters are visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Stewart.

Boys and girls, don't forget that the daily Vacation Bible School at the Bassano Evangelical Free Church will begin on Monday morning, July 30th at 9:00 A.M.

Come and bring your friends! You will enjoy these friendly get-togethers spent in Bible study, games, singing and learning how to make things by handicraft lessons.

The extremely hot weather of the past few days caused a water shortage in Town this week. So much water was used for watering lawns and gardens that it was found necessary to close the swimming pool for a couple of days as there was not sufficient water to refill it after the regular draining and cleaning operation.

The majority of water consumers in the Town use no more than they require but there are a few who run their hoses all night, allowing the water to run off their own land and down the street ditches. If it is found necessary to institute some form of water rationing in order to conserve the supply (and present conditions make that step very likely) these few unthinking consumers will be the ones to blame.

Rev. Dr. F.A. Clare plans to leave on Sunday for Sarnia, Ontario to attend a family reunion. He expects to be away about three weeks.

GEM HOLDS ANNUAL STAMPEDE

The Gem Stampede, sponsored by the Gem Community Club, was held on Wednesday afternoon at the local rodeo grounds. The attendance was smaller than that of last year, which was attributed to the heavy thunder storms in the district during the day.

Results of the cowboy events were as follows: Bronc Riding with Saddle - 1. Alvin Owens, 2. Don McKay, 3. Bob Robinson, 4. Gerald Dosch.

A two year trophy was donated by the Gem Lumber Yard for this event.

Bareback Bronc Riding - 1. Alvin Owens, 2. Don McKay, 3. Cody Morrison, 4. Ellie Lewis.

A sterling silver buckle was donated by the Gem Community Club as a trophy.

Novice Bronc Riding - 1. Ken Pickett, 2. Win Goudie, 3. Armand Gravette, 4. Ray Hood. A sterling silver buckle was donated by Henry's Service. Calf Roping - 1. and 2. split between Tom Hodgson and Bill Collins, 3. Bob Griffiths, 4. Jack Hartell. A two year trophy was donated by the 7L7 Ranch for this event.

The show was concluded by a big cowboy ball at night and everyone reported having had a good time.

In an EID Senior Baseball League fixture on Sunday, the Bassano club won a convincing victory from Scandia by a score of 15 to 7. The Bassano seniors have not been defeated in league play this season. The Sunday game was played at Bassano. Millicent is scheduled to play at Bassano next Sunday and another fine baseball game is in prospect.

GARDEN NOTES

Plant vegetables at one or two week intervals is best

For a great many of the vegetables one can and should continue planting at two week intervals right up to the first or second week in July. Beans, corn, carrots, beets, lettuce and other quick growing or maturing vegetables are in this class. By spreading out planting, we spread out and increase the harvest and keep top quality coming along. With this late planting, it is advisable to speed growth with cultivation, fertilizer, and if necessary, watering in warm weather. At the fall end of the season, we can protect from the first frosts with some light cover of newspapers, old bags, or straw.

When weather is hot

When the real warm weather starts one should make a few changes. In the flower and vegetable garden, a light cultivation once every 10 days or so will not only keep down weeds but it will conserve moisture and tend to keep plants growing and healthy even in really hot weather.

Watering will probably be necessary in some parts of Canada now. Here a lot of mistakes are made by those unfamiliar with the likes and dislikes of plants. One thorough soaking of lawn, flower or vegetable garden, one that will take the moisture down a couple of inches, is worth a dozen sprinklings and it will last for some time. Sprinkling never gets the moisture down more than a fraction of an inch and the roots must come up to the surface to get it, thus exposing themselves more and more to drying and killing by heat and sun. Heavy soaking, however, does not mean turning the nozzles on full blast. The nearer we get to a fine mist the better.

Paths connecting upper and lower gardens or gardens with lower levels, may need some steps. These can be made in various ways; building stones, bricks, concrete blocks or cedar poles staked down with soil or gravel pressed in behind. For a better appearance one should not have more than three or four steps together, except, of course, where the slope is quite extensive, and two or three of such series can be linked with a little bit of level path. Also to add to appearances and interest, we can have the connecting path run at right angles to the steps.

Garden paths may be made of many different materials; flag stones, either natural or cast, concrete, bricks, cinders, gravel, or if traffic is light, a good piece of tough sod.

Where the lot is fairly large, a garden tractor and a power lawn mower will save time and hard work. These machines are not expensive and, given minimum care, they will last for many years. They will do the work at least five times faster than by hand. It is a mistake to purchase too large equipment, especially in tractors. The smaller types are much more easily handled and with attachments will do almost every chore, except heavy plowing.

Grand opening

The annual opening of the summer cottage is an important affair. At this time, a thorough survey should be taken of the building, both inside and out. Floors, walls and ceilings may have developed breaks that could be dangerous. Stoves, pipes and chimneys may have become unsafe through misplacement, rust or other winter effects. Window and door screens also need inspection to ensure that no opportunity exists for the entry of disease-carrying or stinging insects. The natural water supply, such as a well, should be tested for purity, since conditions may have changed to cause the water to become contaminated.

FOR YOUR HOME

Dutch windmill weather vane; handy tea cart

Two sizes for this Dutch windmill are given on the pattern in an attempt to comply with readers' requests for this project in heights from six inches to four feet. The two sizes given seem to be the most popular. Both are built up solid with workshop scraps. The top layer carries the weathervane and is pivoted to the base and roof so as to whirl freely in the lightest breeze. This pattern will be mailed for 35c. It also may be ordered with the Weathervane Packet of patterns ranging in size from small comic action windmills to large decorative weathervanes for barns and garages. The price of this packet is $1.50.

Now, with all the wonderful heat-proof materials that are available at small cost, for the top and bottom of this design, the toaster, waffle iron and coffee pot may be wheeled around the house wherever needed. This double-deck style is especially handy beside the dining table to hold vegetable dishes and dessert; to take care of used dishes and avoid those extra trips to the kitchen. Once you have this teacart in the house many new ways will be found to use it. The pattern illustrates each step in sawing and assembling. Use fiber or rubber casters available at hardware stores. Price of pattern is 35c postpaid.

THE OBSERVER

BY HUGH PEARCE

In the first year of the last war I wanted to do my bit and, as a disability prevented me from "going active" and as I was more or less an experienced machinist, I was employed by the war plant in Regina, Sask as a tool maker.

About the second day after I had moved in with my family a delegation of two Regina ladies called to welcome us to the city. They were members of a club which worked in conjunction with various retailers and combined a visiting committee with a certain amount of advertising for the local businessmen. They were so friendly and so ready to help us get settled and acquainted with our neighbors that we soon lost that feeling of being in a strange city and were soon part of the bunch. Up until that time I had spent my lifetime in western Alberta, which is notorious for it's friendly atmosphere, but I can assure you that I had never encountered the will to assist their fellow man as the ladies' committee and our neighbors did in Regina. You have to move to a strange city and be officially welcomed as we were to realize just what it means to a stranger to be met with that spirit of friendliness.

Why couldn't one of the ladies' clubs in Bassano do the same thing for our new residents? Of course Bassano is a small place in comparison with Regina and a person might easily get acquainted with the nearest neighbors quite soon, but for all that, I believe the new lady would appreciate a welcoming visit from district ladies to help her get acquainted and help prevent lonesomeness and homesickness.

Take the inhabitants of the Bassano Trailer Camp for instance. There must be nearly a dozen ladies in house trailers living there and very likely none of them knew each other or anyone in Bassano when they moved in. A house trailer life can be very lonesome as a woman would have very little to do all day while her husband was at work. How many Bassano housewives have visited these ladies and invited them to their homes? Do you suppose these ladies would appreciate a visitor or two occasionally? Well just imagine yourself cooped up in a trailer house situated where you could see nothing but a beautiful view of some grain elevators and the dust raised by passing autos and I imagine that you would soon arrive at an answer to that question.

At this time I would like to call the attention of the members of the Bassano Board of Trade to the unfinished condition of the swimming pool and point out that there have been several small accidents there on account of that condition. Part of the sidewalk on the west side has never been completed and this has been the cause of quite a few stubbed toes on the edges of the concrete sidewalk. This has resulted in split or cut feet in several instances and, being a public place, could result in a damage suit if someone had blood poison or something that would incapacitate them for a time. The completion of this small part of the sidewalk (an hour's job) would also fasten the ladder securely. No plea of poverty is an excuse for this small job. It is more a case of getting at it.

Another case of plain and fancy dawdling is the construction of the kid's wading pool. The money was collected one year ago and all plans could easily have been completed last year, ready for construction early this year. Then the excuse of being busy with the stampede came up to delay things. I could understand that the stampede kept everyone busy BUT WHAT IS THE CAUSE OF THE DELAY NOW? WINTER WILL COME SOON!

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY —

BLIND DATE

By FERN AUBLE

ROD, dear," Mary Trent paused at the foot of the stairs as the inevitable bang of the front door announced the unmistakable arrival of her 17-year-old son. No one else ever slammed a door quite like Rod.

She turned and came toward him, a surge of pride welling up as it invariably did when she looked at her tall son. The tight, black cap of curls with which he was everlastingly waging battle, was rumpled with the fingers of the brisk wind and his black eyes danced with mischief as he slid to a stop before his mother.

"Hi-ya, Toots!" He grinned engagingly and threw an arm around her shoulders, giving her a quick kiss which brought a flush of pleasure to her cheeks.

"Oh, Rod," she said, laughing in spite of herself, "you're impossible."

He struck a pose and sighed heavily. "Tis just me effervescent spirits, ma'am." Then he sniffed. "What's cookin', good lookin'?"

"It's chocolate cake and not a smidgin of it do you get until dinner. And that's final!"

Rod's sigh was highly exaggerated as he followed his mother into the living room, where he sprawled down into a chair, his long legs stretched out before him. He reached into a box of candy and crammed a piece into his mouth. Mrs. Trent said automatically, as she seated herself across from him, "Don't spoil your dinner, Rod."

She looked at him for a moment speculatively, wondering just how to broach the subject uppermost in her mind right now. She decided, to use a phrase of her son's, to just take the bull by the horns and get it over with. She was pretty sure to encounter some resistance anyway.

"Rod," she began and then stopped. Really, she thought, Charlie might have done this himself.

"M-M-M?" Rod looked at her with mild interest.

She plunged in. "Rod, dear, your father wants you to ask Mr. Billings' daughter to the Festival Dance."

Rod looked at her unbelievably and then bolted upright, indignation in every line of his lanky frame.

"What!" he exploded. "That drip!"

"You haven't asked anyone else yet, have you?" his mother asked anxiously.

"N-not exactly, but I thought I'd drag Elly. Do I have to, Mom?"

"No, son, you don't have to, but it would be a very friendly gesture. After all, the Billings are fairly new here and Anna Marie probably hasn't made many new friends yet."

"That I can believe," he muttered darkly, a mental vision of the daughter of his father's boss in his mind's eye. He'd seen her just once, when he'd driven downtown with his father one morning. Anna Marie had brought Mr. Billings down to the office and Rod had just got a glimpse of her as her father got out of the car. Her face was an unbecoming shade of lobster red and she had some kind of greasy stuff all over it. Her hair had been tied up in a bandana so he couldn't tell whether she was a blonde, brunette or redhead. It didn't make any difference anyhow, that face had been enough to curdle milk. Evidently she had thought so too, for when she had seen Rod staring at her, she'd turned away quickly.

That night, at the dinner table, Rod's father had remarked laughingly, "Mr. Billings' daughter is sure a mess. She laid out in the sun yesterday and went to sleep. When she woke up, she was practically done to a turn." Rod had laughed and then promptly forgot all about it.

He turned to his mother now, despair darkening his face. "Did Dad tell Mr. Billings that I'd take her?" he asked, hopefully.

"I'm afraid he did Rod. I'm sorry, son, but after all, you haven't asked anyone else and your father wouldn't be pleased."

"Nuts!" He shoved his hands deep in his pockets and kicked at the rug disconsolately. "Oh, all right, she's a creep, but tell Dad I'll give my all for the sake of the family."

The next three weeks sped by at an alarming rate. Rod, having called Anna Marie under pressure, reflected gloomily, as he dressed for the dance. "Oh, well, I can take her home early. She'll probably be glad to get home after no one asks her to dance." He yanked his tie into position and turned to leave the room.

A half hour later, he was ringing the Billings' doorbell. The door opened and a sweet-faced woman was smiling at him.

"Oh, you must be Rod," she said, opening the door wide. "Come in, won't you? Anna Marie will be down in just a minute."

Rod stepped inside and stood nervously waiting for Anna Marie to come down. He looked up quickly as a faint sound reached him. He literally stopped breathing and his stomach turned a flip as he beheld the vision of loveliness descending the steps.

The lobster-hued face, slathered with grease, had miraculously disappeared, leaving a skin as smooth and creamy white as the petals of a newly opened magnolia. As the vision reached the bottom of the steps, he discovered that her hair, caught up in a soft cluster of curls, was like a sheaf of sunbeams caught and held by the gardenias he had sent her, under pressure from his mother. Her blue eyes were like cornflowers laughing at the dazed look on his face.

"Hello," she said, shyly, and dropped her eyes in confusion at the open admiration in his face.

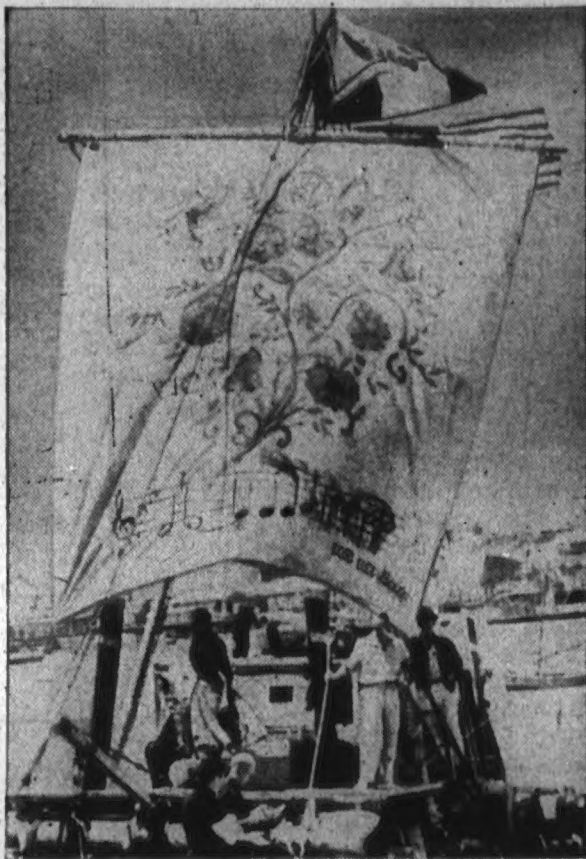

"Jeepers! a dream-puss, no less," Rod breathed. And then, "Ready for the ratrace, beautiful?"

The black lashes flew up and a smile curved the lovely, softly pink mouth.

"Natch," was the retort and, to herself, Anna Marie added, "Glamorpuss."

Score first goal and win game pretty well borne out in NHL

There's been an old saying for years that went something like: "Score the first goal and win the game." It has been pretty well borne out in National Hockey League games played over the years that the team scoring the first goal usually went on to win the game.

After the first 67 games played this season, the club tallying the first goal went on to win the game 37 times. Two of these 67 games were scoreless ties, which means that out of 65 first goals scored 37 were won by the club notching the initial counter. The team scoring the first goal lost 12 times, while on 16 occasions the club scoring first ended the game in a tie.

New York Rangers scored the first goal in the contest 14 times, winning nine of these, tying three and losing two. Chicago Black Hawks also scored the number one goal in a game 14 times, but the Hawks do not boast as successful a record as the Rangers. Out of the 14 times they scored first, the Hawks won six, tied six and dropped two.

Montreal Canadiens are another club that believes in getting off to a good start. The Canadiens actually have the best record for going on to win games in which they count the opening marker. Out of the 11 games in which the Montrealers tallied first, they ended up winning nine, tying one and losing one.

Five of the Toronto Maple Leafs victories were in games in which the Leafs tallied the first goal. The Toronto crew flashed on the red light first in 10 games and their record reads: 5 wins, 2 ties and 3 losses.

Boston Bruins and Detroit Red Wings each scored first in eight tilts. Both clubs ended up with identical results, too. The Red Wings and Bruins both show four wins, two ties and two losses in the eight games in which they scored the premier goal of the night.

WOMAN!

Riccardo Maria Romano, 23-year-old former army sergeant, may have to postpone his wedding—because "officially" he is a woman. He found out recently when he went to the town hall to inquire about a marriage licence and the clerk told him he was registered as a woman. A clerk who registered his birth was misled by the second name Maria.

Canadian farm loans

The Canadian Farm Loan Board recently issued its twenty-sixth annual report covering operations for the year ended March 31, 1955. The board is a federal government agency established in 1929 to make long-term mortgage loans to Canadian farmers.

During the year a total of $8,225,500 was approved for loans, of which 52.5 percent was to buy and pay land-secured debt, 16.5 percent to buy livestock, farm machinery and to make improvements, 28 percent to pay debts and 3 percent for sundry purposes. A total of 2,145 first mortgage loans and 395 second mortgage loans were approved, the average loan being $3,835.

Interest due during the year totalled $1,759,501 and borrowers had paid over 90 percent of this amount by the end of the year. Principal repaid amounted to $3,337,025 and over 56 percent of this amount did not fall due during the year but was voluntarily prepaid.

At March 31, 1955, the board held loans on 18,111 farms throughout Canada, for a total of $40,120,336, the highest figure in the history of the board.

Farm Loan Board loans are available only to farmers actually farming the land offered as security and are made for such purposes as purchasing livestock and farm implements, etc. Farmers may borrow up to $10,000 on first mortgage at an interest rate of 5 percent repayable over a period of 24 years or up to $12,000 on combined first and second mortgages.

World Happenings In Pictures

LONG "PIPE TRAINS" like this are puffing out of Welland, Ontario, these days, hurrying west with big loads of pipe. The pipe cargo is on its way to British Columbia, where it will be used in a vast natural gas transmission and distribution system in greater Vancouver, and the Fraser Valley.

MIXED-UP KID?—Not at all. Gene Baker, Chicago Cubs' second sacker, combines skills of his track star days with high-fly practice at the University of Chicago gym, before leaving for spring training.

SURPRISE—It's a toss-up as to whether this mother penguin is more surprised by the cameraman or the newly hatched chick. An Adele penguin, she's one of some 10,000 formally garbed inhabitants of the rookery on Ross Island in the Antarctic's McMurdo sound. A Navy photographer with the expedition preparing United States bases for participation in the forthcoming International Geophysical Year snapped this rare picture. Penguin mamas lay but one egg a year each.

"PUT IT IN THE CIRCULAR FILE"—In this case, the phrase doesn't mean the wastebasket. It refers to the unit being inspected by engineer Bob Wilkins, above, in New York City. Heart of a million-dollar-plus data collecting system, its 2,700 feet of magnetic tape can store and "remember" as much numerical information as can be recorded on some 500,000 punched cards, according to its manufacturers. Built in Newton Highlands, Mass., as many as 100 of the file units can be combined in one system. Electronic devices "search" the ribbons, 10 at a time. Operation is equivalent to processing four million punched cards in less than 10 minutes, it is said.

DOG-GONE TOOTH — It's a dog's life for Tille, pet of the Ernest Schoelers, of Asheville, N.C. She just had a tooth pulled. It's the first time that the frisky animal has been down in the mouth in all her 19 years. The rest of her canine crockery is still intact.

ON HOLIDAY—Princess Astrid of Norway waves at Idlewild Airport, N.Y., before boarding a plane for Florida. Daughter of Crown Prince Olaf, heir to the Norwegian throne, and of the late Crown Princess Martha, Princess Astrid visited friends during her stop in New York.

SHE BAKED A CHERRY PIE — And it won her the title of Cherry Pie Queen. "At home on the range"—most any range—Annette Hunt, 17, of Indianapolis, Ind., gives a taste of a pie made from her prize-winning recipe to J. R. Poteat, of Louisville, Ky., at contest headquarters in Chicago, Ill.

DESERT WARRIOR KNIGHTED BY QUEEN — Lt.-Gen. John Glubb, dismissed by Jordan as commander of the Arab Legion, who was recently appointed by Queen Elizabeth a Knight Commander of the Bath, one of Britain's highest and oldest orders of chivalry. 'Glubb Pasha' was dismissed recently by King Hussein. He flew to London and reported to Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden.

THESE YOUNG VISITORS pick the ideal spot to capture on film springtime in Bermuda. This is one of the many lily fields that dot the countryside with beauty and fragrance during the months of March, April and May. Bermuda lilies and bulbs are air-expressed to the United States, Canada and England every Easter time.
